Quincy Thief Captured in Thrilling Auto Chase

CARRIGAN TO QUIT RED SOX

FUGITIVE CAR TURNS TURTLE

Two daring motorists, accused of robbing G. M. Hanson's garage in Quincy of $80, this noon, fled in their automobile toward Boston, and were followed by police and citizens in three other machines in a sensational pursuit which ended when the fugitives' auto turned turtle in Dorchester.

The overturn came as the fugitives' car started to whirl from Adams street into Park street at Field's Corner.

John J. Sullivan, twenty-two years, of No. 94 Mount Newton street, Boston, was pinned under the car and, when he was extricated, was promptly arrested.

His companion, who jumped clear in the tip-over, bolted away without stopping to see how his "pal" was. A number of citizens gave chase, but with little prospect of overtaking him.

LEAVE GIRLS IN QUINCY.

Two girls, who were seen in a Quincy restaurant with the two men a few minutes before the garage robbery, were left in that town by the flight of their companions.

Sullivan, the other man and the two girls drove up to Thompson's restaurant in Quincy square at noon and entered the place for luncheon. Patrolman James W. Murray became suspicious of the party, noticed that their car had a flat rear tire, and took advantage of this to go in and tell the men about it in order to have a talk with them. They asked for a garage. Murray directed them to Hanson's. The men drove there, leaving the girls waiting in the restaurant.

A few minutes later the car came back by Murray at fast speed, followed by Hanson and some of his men in another car. Hanson yelled to Murray, who hopped aboard and was told that the two men drove their car up to Hanson's and, while the tire was being fixed, took $80 out of the cash register. Hanson said he learned this just after the tire was fixed and the two men were about to start away. Hanson made a jump for them but they sped out of his place and back toward Quincy square.

MANY CARS JOIN CHASE.

Hanson, C. H. Penniman and William Ackley jumped into one of the garage machines and put after the fugitives. Full tilt they slowed up in Quincy square enough to pick up Patrolman Murray, who opened the machine wide again and shot along after the cloud of dust that was making the flight of the two men along the road to Boston.

Drivers of two other machines in City square, who sensed a police chase, followed Hanson's car, so there were three chasing the fleeing machine.

Dorchester Girl Near Death in Bathtub Is Revived at Hospital

© PHOTOGRAPH BY CHAMPLAIN STUDIOS

Dorothy Shepard, eighteen-year-old Dorchester girl, found unconscious in bathtub. The hospital authorities gave out that she was suffering from gas poisoning.

Eighteen-year-old Dorothy Shepard of No. 79 Bloomfield street, Dorchester, who was found unconscious in a half-filled bathtub at her home, was the cause of much neighborhood discussion today on account of mystery involved in the case.

The girl is back home after being revived at the City Hospital. The police reported that Dorothy's grandmother, Mrs. A. S. Faught, smelled gas, traced it to the bathroom, then telephoned the police.

The bathdoom door was forced. Dorothy was found in a semi-reclining position in the tub, the police said. A rubber tube, with its upper end connected with a gas pipe, dragged on the floor beside the tube. On a chair was an empty two-ounce bottle, labeled "chloral hydrate."

Dr. H. R. Norton, the family physician, sent the girl to the hospital. The hospital gave out that she was suffering from gas poisoning. No mention was made in the hospital report of chloral hydrate. At 5 o'clock, against the advice of the hospital physician, the girl insisted on being sent home.

But Dorothy's mother, Mrs. Walter Shepard, denied vigorously that the girl had any intention of suicide. On this point the mother said:

"Last week my girl tipped over in a canoe on Lake Squam, with my son and myself, in deep water, about a third of a mile from shore. She struggled harder than any one of us to save herself and indeed nearly drowned us in doing so. If she wished for an opportunity for suicide, there was an ideal one. We were finally rescued by some men in a boat."

Mrs. Shepard insisted Dorothy merely fainted in her bath. She said there never was any chloral hydrate in the house and that there was only an empty bromide bottle in the bathroom.

The mother declared, too, that Dorothy was not suffering from gas poisoning, although the City Hospital report specified that. Mrs. Shepard admitted there was a gas tube hanging over the tub, but said it was used with a hair-curling apparatus. She said, too, that the gas was not turned on.

REPORT SOX LEADER TO RETIRE

"Bill" Carrigan is to quit the game after this year, and Pat Donovan will come from the Buffalo International League team to be his successor, according to a report from Washington, where the Red Sox are meeting the Senators today.

Carrigan is not quitting the game because of any dissatisfaction with his treatment by Lannin, according to the Washington report.

He is just tired of baseball. He wants to go down in Maine and run his farm and enjoy himself for a spell.

STRENUOUS YEARS IN GAME.

Carrigan will be thirty-three in October. He was born in Lewiston, Me., where he attended high school before entering Holy Cross. He made a splendid record as catcher at Holy Cross in 1906, and was signed by the Red Sox for the following year.

For the season of 1907 he was farmed out to the Toronto club of the International League. He caught eighty-six games there and had a batting average of .319. He returned to the Red Sox in 1908 and became one of the chief figures on the team.

In 1910 he caught 114 games, and the next year he had played seventy-two games when he broke his leg. He played in eighty-seven games in 1912, the year Jake Stahl led the team to a pennant and a World's Series victory over the Giants.

DONOVAN THE SELECTION.

Carrigan was made manager when Stahl was removed by McAleer. Boston finished second to the Athletics in 1914, and last year won the pennant and the series from the Phillies.

The probable selection of Pat Donovan as Carrigan's successor is due to Buffalo's long lead in the International League race. Buffalo is already sure of the pennant there.

If Donovan comes, then both Boston managers will have come here from Buffalo, for Stallings came from there to the Braves.

FREE SUBPOENA RIGHT FOR POOR

Senator Gurdon N. Gordon of Springfield today filed in the Senate a petition of Richard J. Talbot, asking that the right of free subpoena be extended to all impoverished persons. At present only persons accused of crimes punishable by death or life imprisonment have the right to summon witnesses at the expense of the State.

Paris, Sept. 12.

THE Kaiser and Von Hindenburg may be expected henceforth to fight defensively, and we must not forget that they will do this on our territory. Therefore, we cannot expect the German defensive to be of short duration.

The Kaiser and Von Hindenburg cannot conquer, but we must be prepared to face the fact that they can prolong the resistance indefinitely, thanks to the passive obedience of the German people and their powerful military organization.

The Cebu's captain was compelled to give Lieutenant Bailes, the British commander, the ship's manifest and passenger list.

The official report was laid before Secretary of State Lansing by the War Department.

3 ALARMS FOR K ST. BLAZE

Three alarms were sounded for a fire which practically destroyed the building of the International Waste Company at No. 97 K street, South Boston, today. men and women from surrounding buildings and one horse suffered a broken leg and had to be shot while fourteen others were being led from the stable of Moulton & Holmes, next door to the burning building.

The building where the fire started was a two-story frame structure, about 30 to 125 feet. It was filled with waste, and about a dozen men were at work there when the flames broke out.

They escaped without trouble. A hundred and fifty men and women employes of the V. A. Stout Shoe Company across the street were driven out by the smoke.

The cause of the fire was a mystery. It seemed to start near the roof of the building.

Chief McDonough put the damage at $50,000, but Manager Lewis Lichtenstein of the local branch of the company said the cotton waste alone was worth $60,000. Much of it however, can be salvaged.

TWENTY-TWO "ARSON TRUST" INDICTMENTS

MAILS ROBBED BY THE BRITISH, NEW CHARGE

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 12.—"I have no doubt the information that is coming into possession of this government will force the United States to make effective one of the retaliatory measures that did not into the revenue law. We cannot do otherwise if we are to maintain our own self-respect. From all indications the United States today has less spirit than Sweden, and yet we proudly assert we are one of the greatest nations on earth," declared Senator Chamberlain of Oregon, Democratic chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs.

Senator Chamberlain was author of one of the retaliatory measures in the revenue bill that was adopted by the Senate but was subsequently stricken out under instructions from the State Department. He charged on the floor of the Senate that his measure had been killed through British and Canadian influence.

BRITISH ADMIT ACTS.

"Lloyd George's statement, and Senator Chamberlain, 'is equivalent to an admission of the truthfulness of the charges I made in debate. It proves exactly what the British government is doing and what it intends to keep on doing, in connection with its censorship.

"My correspondence is filled with letters showing how the business of Americans has been interfered with and diverted into other channels.

The British government has taken from the mails, not only letters, but drafts, important papers, actual money and whatever the British could get their hands on.

"I have a letter from a prominent business man in Pennsylvania whose good friendship I would give without his consent, telling how his business has been ruined. I have written him for permission to publish his case to the investigating committee when it takes this matter up in November.

"This man has a business in Amsterdam and has been in business there for more than twenty years. His goods are not in any sense contraband.

"Not only have the British government killed his letters, but it has taken samples from the mails and stopped all intercourse between his Amsterdam establishment and his manufacturing plant in Pennsylvania. This policy has actually put an end to his export business. Not only that, but the mails intended for him evening to this country have been stolen and the orders placed with British manufacturing establishments and there filled.

Began Inquiry for Blacklist Reprisals.

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 12.—The administration commenced today preparations for putting into effect the retaliatory provisions of the recently enacted revenue law, in the event that diplomatic negotiations fail to put an end to the discrimination against American commerce.

WAR SUMMARY

The reopening of the allied offensive from Salonica featured the war news today. Dispatches from Salonica officially announce that the British have crossed the Struma and established themselves in new positions.

The dispatches admit, however, that the British have encountered only Bulgarian outposts and that no particularly strong resistance has been made to their advance. They have not met the main Bulgarian forces.

The question of interest now is—will the offensive be pursued with vigor, or will it die as did that one which started a few weeks ago. That offensive brought Rumania tumbling into the war. It may have been merely a move to persuade Rumania to commit herself. If so, it succeeded.

This offensive, similarly, may be planned to bring Greece into the war, for Paris tells us that the Greek cabinet has resigned and that Venizelos will go into power in the reorganized government.

Venizelos means the commitment of Greece to the cause of the allies. The situation should furnish interesting developments.

Vienna admits further withdrawals in Transylvania, while Rumania places those withdrawals in the upper Maros valley, near the Carpathians. The fighting in this locality has yet to assume a serious character. The Austrians show no real intention of making a stand along their advanced line. The battle of the Dobrudja continues, but we have nothing from either side as to the results of the fighting there.

There has been hard fighting along the entire Somme front, each side attacking in turn. Where any advantage resulted it lay with the allies; but at no point was this of any importance. The British occupied some advance trenches of the Germans, after hand-to-hand fighting; but the strategic line was at no point affected. The Germans are of course hard at work constructing new defenses behind their old line, and it would seem probable that they have strengthened their positions behind Peronne to such an extent since July 1 that no break in their line is to be expected. Gains must continue slow and expensive.

Heavy attacks by the Russians on the line northeast of Halics have failed to net them any gains, according to the German report. The Russians claim nothing.

The Russians claim gains in the Caucasus; the Italians claim advantages in the Posina valley. In neither case was the fighting important.

AVIATOR THAW IS SHOT IN BATTLE

Lieutenant William Thaw, the young Pittsburgh millionaire who won a French war cross medal of the gold star class for his skill and daring as an army aviator, has been crippled in the right arm in a fight with German flyers, and Dennis Dowd, another American aviator in the French Flying Corps, has been killed, according to a letter just received by Mrs. J. Henry Collins of Lowell from her son, Harry Collins, one of Thaw's corps comrades.

Collins wrote that, in addition to Dowd, three other American aviators have been killed and five others wounded in addition to Thaw in recent engagements.

Lieutenant Thaw's right elbow was "pulverized," as Collins described the wound, by a German bullet, and it hung useless at his side.

Lieutenant Thaw, son of Mrs. Benjamin Thaw of Pittsburgh and cousin of Harry Thaw, volunteered in the American Corps of the French Foreign Legion at the beginning of the war. In December, 1914, he was appointed to the French Aviation Corps. He had previously won a name for daring in American aviation records.

Russians Report Two Victories

By International News Service.

Petrograd, Sept. 12.—After organizing the positions taken late last week, the Russian armies have again resumed their offensive against the Teuton armies, winning important successes at two points. In the Caucasus operations the forces of Grand Duke Nicholas have again defeated the Turks. The War Office report says:

"In the region of Bielytcheremoch we captured heights that were obstinately defended by the enemy and his counter attacks were unsuccessful. In the wooded Carpathians we occupied Kapul mountain and a ridge to the northward, capturing 12 officers, 360 men, 2 machine guns, 3 trench mortars and a searchlight.

"In the Caucasus we captured Pyramidnoi mountain, south of the Ordjen heights on the left of the River Masiadarasi."

Repulse Germans on South of Somme

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.

Paris, Sept. 12.—Repulse of a German attack south of the Somme River and a slight local success for the French troops operating there are reported in today's official war communique, the text of which follows:

"South of the Somme an enemy attack on a trench east of Belloy-en-Santerre was easily repulsed. In an operation with grenades we occupied a German trench south of the Berny cemetery.

"Everywhere else the night saw the customary cannonade.

"Aviation.—On the night of September 10 one squadron bombed the railway station at Metz-Sablons and military establishments at Dillingen.

GREEK MINISTRY RESIGNS IN WAR CRISIS

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, Sept. 12.—The Greek cabinet, headed by Premier Alexander Zaimis, has resigned, it was officially announced here today. This clears the way for the return to power of Eutherios Venizelos, staunch supporter of the entente allies and leader in the movement to align Greece in active war operations against the central powers.

It is reported, but not yet officially confirmed, that Venizelos will assume the post of minister of war as well as that of premier. French officials believe that Greek participation in the war is now certain.

Zaimis, strong supporter of King Constantine's policy of "benevolent neutrality toward the entente," is credited with having kept Greece out of the war up to this time. The cabinet which he headed was formed on October 7, 1915. Zaimis also held the post of foreign minister, and it is possible that he may retain this post in the new cabinet.

Despite his opposition to Greek participation in the war, Zaimis is regarded as a friend of the entente. He threatened to resign last November when the Chamber of Deputies, influenced by Venizelos, declined to give the government a vote of confidence, but was persuaded by King Constantine to retain his post.

Bulgars Retreat as British Push Forward

Salonica, Sept. 12.—British troops who crossed the Struma River on Sunday have firmly established themselves in their new positions, it was announced today. They were opposed by small bodies of Bulgarians, but have not yet come into contact with the main Bulgar army in that region.

Unofficial reports reaching here today stated that the Bulgars were retreating along the allies' entire right wing.

In the centre the Bulgarians also appear to be withdrawing to positions they formerly occupied. French troops operating to the north of Kozania took but fifteen prisoners, meeting no strong resistance at any point.

Bulgars in Retreat After 36-Hour Battle

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 12.—An Athens dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company states that the Bulgarians are in full retreat on the Salonica front after suffering enormous losses in a thirty-six-hour battle on the Struma River.

Earlier announcements by the War Office stated that "the British, who yesterday crossed the Struma at Neochori, seized trenches on the east bank. The French, co-operating, captured the village of Yeminah, taking many prisoners. In these operations the enemy suffered heavily in retiring from counter-attacks. In the Lake Doiran region there is a systematic bombardment of the enemy's trenches north of Monokovo."

Paris reports of dispatches from the front stated that all the allied troops in Salonica had taken the offensive, with success for both British and French forces. The report said: "On the region of Lake Doiran, the artillery duel continues violently. Our batteries effectively shelled Bulgarian organization in the section of Macukovo. West of the Vardar a vigorous offensive by the allies' troops in the region north of Majadag gave excellent results. All the Bulgarian trenches were captured on a front of three kilometres (1.8 miles) and to a depth of about 1200 metres (half a mile)."

Bulgars Begin Bucharest Drive

By International News Service.

Berlin, Sept. 12.—Heavy Bulgarian artillery is bombarding Rumanian defences on the north bank of the Danube preparatory to a crossing of that river in a drive upon Bucharest, the Rumanian capital, according to Sofia advices received here.

Along a front of 100 miles extended from Sviatova to Silisteria the Bulgar guns are hurling a rain of shells upon Rumanian territory. The full fury of the Bulgarian bombardment is being concentrated upon Giurgevo, thirty-five miles from Bucharest and connected with the capital by a railway and a fine military highway. From the forts of Rustchuk, opposite Giurgevo, the Bulgarian gunners are battering the defences of the latter town to pieces.

Several fires have broken out in Giurgevo and most of the civilian inhabitants of the town have fled.

The Rumanians have brought up considerable artillery to defend the place, but the Sofia dispatches stated that the Rumanian gunners are being excelled in every particular by the Bulgarians. It is possible that the Bulgarians will attempt the crossing of the Danube at several points. Along the southern bank more than 200,000 Bulgarian veterans have been concentrated for the great drive into their enemy's territory.

U-BOATS TO BLOCKADE BRITAIN

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 12.—In a dispatch from Berlin to the Daily News, Rutledge Rutherford says:

"Germany has decided to declare a blockade against England, effective on January 1 next.

"For this purpose, a powerful fleet of submarines is being completed and plans are being worked out to make the blockade a stringent one.

"The movements of the submarines, it is said, will be guided to some extent by Germany's Zeppelins. These Zeppelins and submarines will be equipped with wireless apparatus.

TO HAVE 200 U-BOATS.

"One high in the councils of the German naval authorities said:

"'By the end of the year and perhaps a little sooner Germany will have to fighting trim 200 submarines of the most efficient type and no vessel carrying food or munitions will be permitted to reach England

"'Ours will be a real blockade, not a coercive or illegitimate one, such as England pretended to institute against Germany'

"No compunction will be felt regarding the revival of submarine warfare because it is felt that England's abrogation of the Declaration of London has left Germany free of restraint in the matter of her promise to America.

"Walter Forstmann, Germany's most skilled submarinist, is on the progress to command the squadron of submarines. He recently received the Order of Merit for sinking more than a hundred vessels, which included transports, patrol vessels and merchantmen.

BREMEN'S FATE A MYSTERY.

"The return of the great submarine Deutschland from the United States has encouraged further undersea efforts. Many new submarines will be equipped with improved devices, one of which will enable submarine commanders to detect and destroy mines which England has laid and will lay in great numbers.

"Mystery surrounds the whereabouts of the submarine Bremen. That she has suffered damage to her engines or that she has been sunk by a British destroyer is denied by naval authorities here.

"The Bremen should have reached Baltimore, however, before the Deutschland started on her return trip."

BARRED AS JEWS, SAYS WITNESS

Mrs. Lena Green, one of the proprietors of the Leighton House, Winthrop Highlands, over which a legal battle is being fought to determine whether it is a hotel or a boarding house, today declared on the witness stand in East Boston court that Selectman James S. Carr, in refusing her an innholders' license, said they were Jewish people and would injure his neighborhood.

This statement came in reply to a question of her counsel, Isaac Harris, who asked if she would have operated the house as a hotel had she been able to obtain a license.

VISITED CARR HOME.

"Certainly," replied Mrs. Green.

"When we purchased the Leighton House and its property we did intend to operate it as a hotel, and with that end in view we applied for an innholder's license, which we were refused," said Mrs. Leighton in telling her story.

"Accordingly my daughter and I visited Mr. Carr in his home. We were ushered into a private room and I pleaded with him to tell me the reason why he and the other members of the Board of Selectmen had refused my husband and myself the license.

"I had never done anything in Winthrop which would warrant this action by the board, and I felt I had the right to know the reason.

"Whereupon Mr. Carr said to me:

"'You will spoil my neighborhood. You are Jewish people.'

"I know that I cried and so did my daughter. He opened the door and made a gesture as if to say, 'Go out.'"

In telling of the part she played in the conduct of the house, Mrs. Green said she personally superintended the work of the kitchen and went to work at 4 in the morning and sometimes was kept busy until twelve at night.

She testified that the occupants of the house were regular boarders and that the Leighton House did not cater to the transient trade.

Q.—Did you cater to automobile parties, who would come down Sunday for dinner or supper? A.—I did not bother with sojourners at all. My house was a well-filled.

Q.—What prices did you get for your rooms? A.—From $75 to $200 for the season, depending upon their size and location.

NO TRANSIENT BOARDER.

Q.—What did you charge for table board? A.—Ten dollars a week.

Q.—How many people would your dining-room seats? A.—I can seat from 135 to 140 people. They are all regular boarders.

Q.—Do any of your table boarders room outside your house? A.—Yes. I have many people that eat with me, but room with gentile people.

Q.—Where do the most of your boarders come from? A.—Roxbury, Dorchester and Lynn.

Before the testimony of Mrs. Green was given Joshua Remby, chairman of the Winthrop Board of Selectmen, took the stand.

When asked to tell what he knew about an alleged stormy session regarding the granting or a hotel license to Mr. and Mrs. Green, objections were made by Isaac Harris, which were sustained by Judge Barnes.

Daniel T. Callahan, superintendent of the Investigating Agency that was responsible for a detective boarding at the house, testified briefly.

MRS. JOHN L. BARLOW, JR., (Miss Marie Beckman) subject of the painting, "The Candle Light," which led to romance. Here she is shown as she appeared before the camera.

Miss Marie Beckman of Tremont street, Brighton, was secretly married September 2 to John L. Barlow, Jr., of Newport, who says that he fell in love with her before he had ever seen her

Last Spring Barlow attended an exhibit of Boston paintings, and was instantly smitten by the sparkling charm of one styled "The Candle Light." It was from the brush of Guy Greefe. It portrayed a twenty-year-old girl ascending a flight of stairs, her features illuminated by the glow of a candle she carried in her hand. The girl was Miss Beckman. Barlow met the original of the portrait a week later.

"It was a case of love at first sight," declared Barlow, "for I had fallen before my wife's charm when I first beheld her features in 'The Candle Light.'"

The parents of the youthful pair were told today of their nuptials. According to Mrs. Barlow she and her husband were married in the rectory of St. Paul's Cathedral.

Mrs. Barlow is the daughter of Mr. August Beckman, a prosperous farmer of Greenville.

HUGHES' ACT IS CONDEMNED BY HATTER

By International News Service.

Springfield, Sept. 12.—Labor legislation was the primary subject of interest at the convention of the State branch of the American Federation of Labor today. From the denunciation of a "former Supreme Court Judge" (Charles Evans Hughes), who voted for the decision which fined the Danbury, Ct., hatters $40,000, to Charles Morris of the Hatters, to the denunciation of the effort of the Legislature "to bring a return of party enrollment, the whole list of resolutions caused brought forth bitter comment on legislative methods.

Mr. Morris delivered his attack, which was palpably aimed at Mr. Hughes, during a heated series of denunciations of the country's judiciary, as a check upon the initiative of the common people. The resolution regarding the election of judges brought forth many speakers, who advocated the recall of judges and judicial decisions.

Among the resolutions adopted today were:

Workmen should not be obliged to accept the services of physicians hired by their employers or by insurance companies.

The State Constitution should be amended to permit the election of judges to all courts in the Commonwealth.

The Boston City Council should be notified that the Edison Company of Boston is unfair to labor.

The constitutional amendment to be voted on this Fall entitled a "Bill to prevent members of one party from voting in the primaries for candidates of the other party" is really a bill to initiate a return to party enrolment and should be defeated.

PICKPOCKET IS SUICIDE AT HOTEL

The body of the man who committed suicide at the Hotel Continental Sunday night, after he had registered as John Gilhooley, was identified today as that of William Riley, a notorious pickpocket, who had a long police record.

Only a few weeks ago Riley was arrested for picking the pocket of a passenger on a car in the subway. He was given a suspended sentence because he had tuberculosis. He promised to go to the Maine woods and try to regain his health. Instead, he remained in Boston and went to the hotel where he shot himself through the heart.

Riley was thirty-five years old. He lived for the most part in the South End.

GOVERNOR'S PLAGUE AT SPECIAL SESSION

The Legislature met in special session at the State House at 11 o'clock today to take action allowing Massachusetts soldiers at the border to vote; to take measures for the relief of their dependents and to take action on the Suffolk county apportionment muddle.

Each branch met in its own chamber, the Senate later filing into the House chamber for a joint session at 12 o'clock, the session being addressed by the governor in person.

The governor recommended legislation permitting the soldiers to vote for Federal officers and measures for the relief of their families. With regard to the Suffolk County Apportionment Board's necessity, which arose today, the governor declared it to be filled with "glaring inequalities."

HUGHES SOLDIER VOTE.

He recommended that action be taken so that nominations may be made in Suffolk County on the regular primary day, in order to save to the city of Boston the expense of a special primary. But he advised the Legislature, if the Supreme Court should set aside the second report, that a special primary may be held in October.

Today's special session of the Legislature is the first since 1901, when a special session was called to pass upon the revision of the statutes. A Governor of the Commonwealth has not addressed a special joint session of both branches since the great Boston fire of 1872.

Governor McCall said in part:

"Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

"More than 7,000 members of the Massachusetts National Guard have been sent by the United States to the Mexican border and there now serves a responsibility, each growing stronger, that they will not be permitted to return to the Commonwealth before the first Tuesday in November.

"If they are to vote at that election, provision should be made now. This great number of patriotic men who responded to the call of their country in what appeared to be a time of national peril should not be deprived of the right of suffrage for as that right can be preserved to them.

"I am advised that under our Constitution the Legislature has no authority to provide for extra-territorial voting for State officers, but that it has the power to make provision for such voting for national officers. I therefore recommend the passage of a law under which the votes of such of them as return as a result of the election may be taken and counted for presidential electors, United States Senator and Representatives in Congress.

MUST AID SOLDIERS' FAMILIES.

"It has been the wise custom of the Commonwealth in time of war to supplement the meagre pay of State soldiers so that reasonable provision might be made for them and for those dependent upon them. Waiving the question whether or not the federal government has done its full duty towards our soldiers, the question confronts us, what does equity demand of the Commonwealth? What is a suitable provision for those who risk their lives for their country affords one important test by which to measure the greatness of a State.

"A large number of the National Guard amounting, I am informed, to more than fifteen hundred men, have near relatives dependent upon them for support. There has been no such necessity as would require the service at the border of men with dependent families.

"The Federal government has recognized the absence of such necessity and it was reported early in the Summer that their services would be dispensed with. Thus far, however, it has taken no effective steps towards returning those men to the Commonwealth. The place for these men is at their homes, and we should attempt to secure their discharge. In the meantime we should care for those who are dependent upon them.

"I recommend a suitable increase in the compensation of the soldiers, with a further provision for those dependent upon them and that due authorization be given to cities and towns to raise money by taxation or otherwise and expend the same for such purpose.

APPORTIONMENT REPORT.

"In a decision rendered on last Friday the Supreme Judicial Court held that the reapportionment of Suffolk county into representative districts by a majority of the special commission created for that purpose was a nullity.

"Yesterday a new report was filed by the commissioners, in which some glaring inequalities still appear. It is important to save the county of Suffolk the expense of holding a special primary, but the right of equal representation among our people, so far as it is possible to attain it, is too vital a principle of government to be surrendered in order to escape the expense of a special primary election.

"I am advised that the Legislature has no power to revise or set aside the report of the commission, which derives its power directly from the Constitution, and that, until further action by the court, the report stands as the basis of representation for Suffolk County.

"I recommend that provision be made for the nomination of candidates for the House in Suffolk County at the regular primary, and to the end that that county may not be disfranchised, that special primaries be provided for in the event that the later reapportionment shall be set aside by the court.

"If the questions relating to reapportionment are not dealt with, the great County of Suffolk may be wholly or partially disfranchised. If provision is not made for the voting of the soldiers they may be deprived of their ballot at an important crisis in the affairs of the nation.

"Growing out of the service of the soldier the granting of due compensation to him and provision for his family becomes a pressing subject. I therefore refrain from making further recommendations to you.

"I invite your careful consideration of the questions to which I have referred."

ACCUSED SEARCHING OF MAIL FOR AGED THEFT RECLUSE

Stephen J. Slack of No. 9 Harvard street, Dorchester, father of nine young children, was arrested today charged with stealing $440 and $1,000 containing money.

Slack, who has been a clerk in the railway mail service for fifteen years, said he had but $7 on marked bills in his possession when taken into custody at the instigation of Postal Inspector Rhind.

According to fellow employes, Slack is the happy father of twins, one of which he lives. The home is in his wife's name.

The arrest of Slack marks the second case of the kind within a week. Only a week ago almost to the hour Postmaster Frank A. Allen received word from Inspector Rhind that Richard H. Smith of Somerville, clerk at the central office for ten years, was the father of eight children. He was charged with the same offence.

In his case, as with Slack, he is said to have been unable to meet the payments on his house in Somerville, in which he has only a small equity.

Mrs. Slack furnished bail bail when her husband was arraigned before the United States Commissioner Hayes and held for the Federal Grand Jury, which is now in session. Slack was on the mail run between Boston and Troy.

INSPECTOR BURKE TO WED MISS LYONS

The marriage intention of Michael J. Burke, aged forty, of No 19 Hancock street, West End, a Boston Police Inspector, and Miss Agnes Louise Lyons, aged thirty-five, of No. 1222 Cambridge street, Cambridge, a telephone operator, was filed this morning in the Registry of Marriages at City Hall.

Joseph was married once before to Charles Wells Cook, member of the Boston Art Club, an amateur water-colorist and artist of considerable merit, who disappeared a month ago after leaving a letter saying he was going to commit suicide. Mrs. Cook is dead, but would have been glad to know that she is believed by the police to have committed suicide. A warrant was issued charging Slack with the theft of the money, but he refused to be arraigned before Inspector Rhind.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 12.—The Republicans have made a clean sweep in Maine.

In a landslide on the occasion of Maine's biennial State election the Republicans elected the Governor, two United States Senators, the entire congressional delegation of four members, a State Auditor, and by wresting control of the Maine House from the Democrats will be able on a joint ballot of the Legislature to elect the other State officers not elected by popular vote.

Later returns today increased most of the G. O. P. margins of victory, and also showed the total vote to be certainly the second highest Maine vote on record, and indicated that possibly the final returns would put the total well above the high water mark.

LEADS BY MORE THAN 63,000.

Carl E. Milliken led the Republican ticket, defeating Governor Oakley C. Curtis, seeking re-election, by a plurality of more than 12,000.

A big feature of the election was the defeat of Congressman Daniel J. McGillicuddy of Lewiston for re-election. The vote between him and his opponent, Wallace H. White, Jr., was close.

Five hundred and ninety-three precincts out of 656 in Maine, representing 483 out of 522 cities and towns, gave Milliken 79,902 and Curtis 66,547.

These carry the total vote so far to 146,449.

Democratic Senator Charles F. Johnson was swamped by Colonel Frederick Hale for the United States Senate, by an estimated plurality of 10,000.

Former Governor Bert M. Fernald, Republican candidate for the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Burleigh, is the winner over Kenneth C. M. Sills, by over 12,000.

ELECT CONGRESSMEN.

In addition to White, the Republicans elected three Congressmen: E. E. Goodall, Joan A. Peters and Ira G. Hersey.

The G. O. P. increased its majority in the State Senate in addition to securing control of the House of Representatives.

Democratic victory was hailed with acclamations by the Republican leaders, who declared it augured a certain Republican victory in the Presidential election in November. It was apparently the wish of State chieftains that national issues were injected into it, national figures took part, including Charles Evans Hughes and Colonel Roosevelt, so that the State candidates took a back seat during the campaign.

The returns indicate that the head of the Republican ticket received practically 100 per cent. of the Progressive vote of two years ago.

Here are some figures of interest:

In 1912 the vote was:

Wilson.	Roosevelt.
51,113.	38,345. 43,402

In 1914 the vote was:

Democratic.	Republican.	Progressive.	Dem.	Repub.	Prog.	Total.

The vote for Governor on returns up to 10 a. m. today was:

Curtis (D.)	Milliken (R.)	Prog.	Total.
66,547	79,902	None.	146,449

The percentage of increase in the total vote stands at about 4½ per cent. The Democratic gain stands at about 4½ per cent. The Republican gain stands at about 25 per cent.

The Democratic share of the increased vote would give them about 65,500 votes, while if the Republicans had shared in proportion only they would have received about 61,200.

The Republicans received 61,200—AND, IN ADDITION, they received 18,702 votes, or 300 more than the total Progressive vote of 1914.

Therefore, they captured practically 100 per cent. of the Progressive vote.

The Republican vote this year was about 5,000 more than the combined Republican and Progressive vote in 1912.

Chairman Frank J. Ham of the Republican State Committee claimed that Milliken's plurality over Governor Curtis would reach 15,000. Besides the election of two Senators and four Congressmen, he claimed the Republicans had carried every one of the sixteen counties with the exception of Knox and Androscoggin.

POLICE TO SHOOT RIOTERS IN NEW YORK

New York, Sept. 12—Owing to an alarming increase in violence attending the operation of surface and elevated cars in defiance of the traction companies, Chief Inspector Dominick Inspector issued orders to the police today to use their revolvers.

The orders were issued even the police were following a series of attacks on cars in Harlem and on the East and West sides.

"Don't be afraid to use your guns and shoot effectively if necessary to get these assailants," Schmittberger commanded. "These attacks must stop, and it is up to the police to stop them."

The police officials were angered by the fact that only one arrest was made during six attacks that were made within an hour at different points in the strike zone.

Strike sympathizers who pelted six cars coming from roofs on Bergen, Third and Eighth avenues, Brooklyn before the police reserves could get them, terrified passengers among the passengers occurred as the missiles rattled on the cars. The single arrest made during this outburst of disorder was that of a man giving his name as Edward Kasha, and who said he was a striking motorman. He is accused to landing an attack on a car at Columbus circle.

TWO KILLED IN CRASH.

A trolley operated by a "green motorman" got beyond control as it started down a grade at One Hundred and Fifty-fourth street and Boston road, crashing into two fitney buses.

Two persons were killed and nine injured. None of the injured were seriously hurt that their death is believed to be only a matter of a few hours.

Almost as soon as the car left the barn it was noticed that the motorman was unable to control it. Several passengers on board clung to their seats in terror.

Hasty calls were sent for ambulances as soon as the double disaster occurred. One of the victims was jammed under the forward trucks of the car, dead. His body was extricated by a fire company called to the scene.

PASSENGERS THROWN OUT.

The car gained momentum as it swept down the grade, and after traveling three blocks jumped the track at a curve.

The runaway car first struck a jitney owned by Julius Grossman, in which there were three passengers. The automobile was capsized as the car struck it and Grossman and his passengers were thrown to the pavement.

Continuing on its way the car crashed into a jitney owned by Charles E. Gales, a lumberman of Unionport, who was taking ten of his employes to work. Gale and his passengers were thrown out of the automobile and smashed to the ground. The car finally jumped the curb and crash against a water standpipe on the sidewalk.

The general strike situation today was, from the viewpoint of the transportation-seeking public, worse than at any other time.

There was a marked diminution in the number of trains operated in the subway and on the elevated lines. Service on both was far below normal. On the surface lines the transportation was completely crippled.

SERVICE IS REDUCED.

The traction officials kept the surface cars in the barns until 7 a. m., an hour later than usual. When they were sent out with crews that had remained loyal, their number was wholly inadequate to accommodate the thousands that have used them daily in going to work.

The traction companies claimed to be making progress, but the strike leaders answered this by pointing out the diminished service on the subway and elevated and made the counter claim that hundreds of employes who had at first remained loyal had joined the union ranks.

Abandonment of the plan to call out all the trade unions in New York city and limit the proposed sympathetic strike to labor organizations directly concerned with the operations of the traction companies had the effect of turning public sentiment toward the strikers.

If the sympathetic strike is finally decided upon it will affect only between 80,000 and 90,000 men, including engineers, firemen, longshoremen and power plant employes.

MILITIA CASES BEFORE COURT OF APPEALS

Judges Putnam, Bingham and Aldrich, sitting as a special session of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, heard arguments today for and against the government's appeal in the Emerson and Lowell test cases on the application of the federal army bath to militiamen.

The result of the contest is awaited with public interest because it will affect about 50,000 members of the National Guard, or former State militia, in all States.

REFUSE TO TAKE OATH.

Alexander Emerson, a Boston architect, and Alfred P. Lowell, a Boston lawyer, were members of B Troop, First Squadron Cavalry, M. V. M. They were mobilized to Framingham. When they were called upon to take the federal oath under the May national defence act, Emerson refused. He argued that, under the new defence act, he was not compelled to take the federal army and was not subject to military orders as before.

Lowell took the federal oath, but claimed that he did it under duress, during a provision of the Brick bill, which prescribed court-martial for those refusing.

Both troopers were put under arrest by order of Colonel William Sweetser, who was in charge at Camp Whitney, Framingham. They won the preliminary round in court.

United States District Attorney George W. Anderson argued today for the government, assisted by Major Robert T. Ansell of the judge advocate general's office at Washington and by Assistant United States District Attorney Lewis Goldberg. Henry Wheeler and Harry L. Sampson appeared for the troopers.

GOVERNMENT'S POSITION.

Mr. Anderson claimed that the national defence act did not abolish the Dick bill, that the court should bear in mind that the intent of Congress, as shown by more men into the army, not let out a lot of them, and that the militiamen were not thrown out of service by the new act.

Mr. Wheeler argued that the new defence act legislated the militia out of existence, that, if militiamen did not care to take the Federal oath, the War Department could not compel them to, that enlistment in the former militia did not make military life a part of their vocation and that he had a right to say whether he chose to continue as a federal soldier, making a contract for such if he wished.

HOLD ELEVATOR MAN FOR FATAL ACCIDENT

George H. Webster, night watchman at the Crawford House, was arrested today on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Emma Stevens of Springfield. Stevens, a guest, was crushed to death in one of the hotel elevators, which the night watchman, who is 65 years old, was operating soon after midnight.

VERMONT CONTESTS BEFORE THE VOTERS

Burlington, Vt., Sept. 12—The direct primary law had its first test in Vermont today. There were few Democratic contests, and Horace P. Graham was unopposed for the Republican nomination for Governor, but there was a thrilling triangular contest for the Republican senatorial nomination between Carroll S. Page, Governor Charles W. Gates and former Governor Allen M. Fletcher.

NO RELIEF FROM INTENSE ITCHING

Tells of "Wonderful Cure" by Resinol

Boston, Mass., Aug. 26.—"I had eczema in the worst way for six months. A small pimple on my right wrist began spreading until it was up to my elbows. It came out in spots and some places were like water blisters. The itching was intense and I had no relief whatever. My fingers were all covered with cracks and pained me very badly. My hands and arms were all scales. The burning was so bad it felt as if I had been turned to a blister and the blister rubbed off. I tried everything I could hear about, including many prescriptions, but had no relief. As a last resort I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. The itching STOPPED AT ONCE. Before I had used Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap three days the redness had all gone, I could sleep nights—no itching or burning—and I felt like a new woman. People who knew me when I had this trouble were surprised at the wonderful cure." (Signed) Mrs. J. S. Walker, 97 Bartlett St., Charlestown.

HEADACHES

Thousands of men and women suffer from headaches every day; other thousands have headaches every week or every month, and still others have them but occasionally, but not at regular intervals. The best doctor is often unable to find the cause of many of these headaches, and in most other cases, though the cause is known, it does not always will remove it, so as to give a permanent cure. All he can do is to prescribe the usual pain relievers, which give temporary relief, but the headache returns as usual, and treatment is again necessary. If you suffer from headaches, for heaven's sake don't continue, take Anti-kamnia Tablets, and the results will be astonishing to the sufferer. You can obtain them at all druggists in any quantity, 100 worth, 50c worth or more. Ask for A-K Tablets.

SICK-HEADACHES

Sick-headache, the most miserable of all sicknesses, lasts its terrors when A-K Tablets are taken. When you feel an attack coming on, take two tablets, and in many cases the attack will be warded off. During an attack take one A-K Tablet every two hours. The pain and comforts which follow, can be obtained in no other way.

Genuine A-K Tablets bear the K monogram. At all druggists.

Burglar Wounded When Watchman at Webster Shoots

Webster, Sept. 12—One man was shot and seriously wounded when six burglars broke into the A. J. Bates Company shoe shop and factory here last night and were discovered by the watchman.

The watchman, Antonio Galli, turned his flashlight on them and asked what they wanted.

They scattered toward doors and windows. He fired and one fell. The others escaped.

Galli went to the man who had fallen. Blood was running from a wound in his body and he seemed to be dead. Galli dropped the body and went to phone the police.

Gilbert Osborne and Patrolman Steven Hawkins answered the call; but when they reached the factory the apparently dead man had taken advantage of Galli's preoccupation at the telephone to get through a window and away. A pool of blood was on the floor.

The police notified all physicians and hospitals to detain any man who come to them for treatment of a bullet wound.

The burglars apparently got nothing.

TO END CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength, and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Any one who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Advertisement.

Why Society Women Wash Their Own Hair

Few realize how many society women now wash their own hair, not because it is a fad, but because they wish to obtain the greatest possible hair beauty and be sure they are not using anything harmful. Yet thousands who have found that in washing the hair it is never wise to use a makeshift but is always advisable to use a preparation made for shampooing only, say they get the best results from a simple home-made canthrox mixture. You can enjoy this, the best that is known, for about three cents a shampoo by getting some canthrox from your druggist, and dissolving a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. Your shampoo is now ready. After its use the hair dries rapidly with uniform color. Dandruff, excess oil and dirt are dissolved and entirely disappear. Your hair will be so fluffy that it will look much thicker than it is. Its lustre and softness will also delight you, while the stimulated scalp gains the health which insures hair growth. —Advertisement.

HEADLINERS ON BIG BILL AT KEITH'S

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—A bill of headliners is the offering at Keith's this week.

Dainty, charming, fascinating Nan Halperin, although not occupying the position on the bill usually given a headliner, is really the star act again this week. This girl, who rose to be a star almost in one night, is rejoicing her success this week.

Depicting the five stages of childhood, from the youngest of the family she passes through the successive stages of girl graduate, bridesmaid, bride and divorcee.

Another star act is that of Sidney Jarvis and Virginia Dare. They have a brand new act in which a sidewalk bride through the maze of song is changed into a very human young woman, who finally capitulates to her husband and decides to live happily ever after with him.

They are followed by Al Herman, described on the bill as being an assortment of grief and remorse. Al certainly lives up to his description, and along with that took the entire audience into his confidence.

An amusing, though somewhat overdrawn, sketch, in which two children settle the marital troubles of the parents of one of the children is portrayed by Vivian and Genevieve Tobin and a supporting company in "The Age of Reason."

May Naudain, late of musical comedy, accompanied by Anatol Friedland, offered a pleasing series of songs of Mr. Friedland's composition.

Other numbers on the bill are Reiter Bros. a comedy acrobatic team; John Cutty, a well-developed musical act; J. C. Nugent, an exceptionally clever if written talking piece entitled "The Mind Hound"; Pilcowitz's singers and dancers; a Russian whirlwind team of eight that can sing harmoniously as well as perform the difficult Russian dances, and the Hearst International News Pictorial, presenting up-to-date news pictures.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—The bill at Loew's Orpheum Theatre is a very good show this week. The program includes such performers as Rogers and Wynn, "The Mirage Girls," Rouble Sims, the talkative chalkologist, and John O'Malley, Irish tenor, who offers a selection of Irish melodies. La Vier Cimaron Trio present their grotesque comedy and dancing travesty, "Imaginations." Robert O'Connor and company stage a new comedy playlet, "Dear Times and Yore." Folsom and Brown are artistic song delineators, while the Chinese musical entertainers, a novel addition to the ranks of vaudeville, offer an interesting program of selections made on the Xylophone, banjo and violin.

NORUMBEGA PARK—Sir Gilbert Parker is one of the best known novelists of today and from one of the greatest stories he ever wrote was made the photoplay, Jordan is a Hard Road," the feature of the program given each night this week at Norumbega Park. The picture is a Triangle production and features such players as Dorothy Gish, Frank Campeau, Owen Moore and other performers. The film play deals with Canadian life and tells an absorbing and dramatic story.

The program also includes several vaudeville acts.

NEW COMEDY AT CASTLE SQUARE

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE—Castle Square theatre is greeted the presentation of "Milt and Jeff's Wedding," the latest edition of the musical comedy of Bud Fisher's famous newspaper characters.

The production is given by a talented company, which includes clever dancers, whose graceful dances and poses is pronounced. The comedy is presented in three acts, throughout which the audience is in a continuous state of hilarity.

Charlie Cash, a bookkeeper, is in love with his employer's daughter, Cash, in the guise of a woman, gets a position as bookkeeper in her father's employ. Cash, in his efforts to win the girl's favor, has to do away with a suffragette and shows determination to keep her from entering politics. Many efforts are made to frustrate his every attempt to win the girl's hand.

In order to carry out his plot Cash induces Jeff to come to his aid and Mutt to wed Jeanette Roundheart, a widow. Of matrimonial troubles form the best part of the play.

Burt Hanlon as Mutt and Jerry Sullivan as Jeff proved a decided hit with the patrons. Rose Kessner and Katie Rooney as Mrs. Jeff and Mutt respectively were also favorites in their every attempt to win the girls

Capt. Evers Is in Town Willing to Add His Mite

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

John J. Evers, the battling captain of the Braves, arrived in town this morning, hardly his former self, but withal a mighty valuable addition to the somewhat battered outfit that has represented the parent league in Boston of late. He arrived some hours after his old teammate, Joe Tinker, who is here for a five-game series between his Cubs and the Braves.

The Trojan isn't at all well as yet, and is not at all certain as to just when he will get into harness and start playing. He stated soon after his arrival that if Stallings wanted him out in uniform this afternoon he'd be there. He remarked, however, that his shoulder still pains him, and that any effort at throwing the ball would be productive of considerable agony. Since he left the club in Chicago, following his last suspension, he has been resting up and trying to regain his health.

No person regrets more than he does his long absence from the game. He is fully aware that his being out of the lineup has had a bad effect on the club's fortunes, and as a result is desirous of doing all he can to make amends from now on.

PIRATES LOSE IN BUSHES.

Binghamton, N. Y., Sept. 12.—The local (New York State League) team defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6-3. Hits were seventeen for the locals and fifteen for the National Leaguers.

Babe Ruth vs. Johnson Red Sox Expect to Win

Washington, Sept. 12.—Walter Johnson is practically certain to oppose Bill Carrigan's World's Champions today following yesterday's defeat of the home team, and Carrigan is just as certain that "Babe" Ruth will oppose the famed right-hander.

Carrigan believes in bunches. He has a hunch that the buxom southpaw will again defeat the blond shrapnel, just as he has done four times this season. So, if "Old Pox" Griff sends Johnson to the slab Ruth will be trotted out to oppose the Griffmen. And it's morally certain Johnson will be on duty.

The Champions copped the third game in the present series because they displayed better playing power than the Griffmen. Shaw was invincible for five innings, but when Henry dropped two third strikes on Hal Janvrin the young man blew up. The Dorchester wonder came through with a double, scoring "Dutch" Leonard. "Chick" Shorten immediately collided with a wallop for a cushion and another run came across for the Champions. After that it was easy.

The Red Sox put the matinee on the beautiful blink in the seventh. Lewis, first up, scratched an infield single and was sacrificed to second by Shorten. After McNally Bled to Smith and Carrigan pronounced, "Dutch" Leonard came through with a double to deep centre, scoring both runners.

GAME CLINCHED IN SEVENTH.

The Senators scored their first run in the opening inning. Joe Leonard made the circuit on a single, a pass to Foster, Milan's safe hunt and Smith's spiral to Hooper. Shanks put the kibosh on the healthy start by slapping into a double play, which was started by Scott.

In the seventh a pass to Judge, McBride's force-out and steal and Williams' safety gave the locals their second and final tally.

Today the curtain falls on the major league season in the Capital and it will be observed with special ceremonies. Fifteen hundred guardsmen from Camp Hadlo, Va., accompanied by three bands, will be the guests of the Washington club. Then Alfreck and Sawyer, Griff's famous comedians, will be turned loose to entertain the fans.

OFF FOR WEST TONIGHT.

The Champions will leave for St. Louis at 6.15 this evening, being due in the Mound City tomorrow afternoon. They are confident they will run riot through the West.

Before coming here the Red Sox were not so positive as to their abilities, but their success against the Griffmen has given them plenty of courage and now they are counting on winning the pennant from the Western clubs right in the West.

"We have been reading a lot of this stuff about our cracking" says Manager Carrigan, "and it makes us laugh. We have been going right along, playing each game as it stood, and when we land in the West you just keep your eyes on us. We shall show 'em up out there."

RING REMARKS

IT is pretty well understood that Terry Brooks, of the Eddie Mack stable, and Joe Connolly, of Charlestown, a pair of battling rascals, will go on in the twelve-round bouts with Bantamweights Young Pal Moore and Young Britt on next Tuesday night's Armory A. A. boxing card.

LIKEWISE has Young Britt an engagement to keep at the Commercial A. C. Friday night. His opponent is to be Monte Attell. Hm. Abe's noted little brother, who fought the best of them with good fortune in California some six or seven years ago. Attell has been boxing in New York of late months. He was seen at a Lenox club up to going against Joe Gans at Gotham's new 116 pound sensation, Joe Wednesday, when he got his end run second.

STILL, Attell didn't show the white feather against Lynch, who, by the way, is slated to go over to London and meet Jimmy Wilde for the flyweight title. Here's what Pat Masterson had to say of the Lynch-Attell battle in the New York Morning Telegraph: "Although Monte was severely walloped in every round, he rarely stood and kept walking in for more and trying, at the same time, to get over a right cross that might change the tide of battle that had slowly but surely set in against him from the very beginning. But try as he might, Monte was unable to land an effective blow with either hand, although it didn't seem to discourage him in the least, for he acted gamely to his work."

EDDIE MACK has added Jack Savage to his string. The latter is due to go on with Harrill Smith, the Duluth, Minn., middleweight, at the Commercial A. C. Friday night.

J. Arthrath of Salt Lake City, Utah, is handling Jack Dempsey, claimant of the World's middleweight championship, and wants to bring him this way if the Armory A. A. management desires to put him against Bill Brennan, or some other big fellow.

Almost nothing is on deck with some more of his breezy literature in which he goes for him boosting Joe Welling and Tom Cowler. He claims that Welling has just got through polishing and outfighting Johnny Dundee, the New York papers didn't think so—and polishing Jack Britton by an even break—the Buffalo writhes sent out a different version. Johnston claims he wants nothing, in fact prefers to match any other Welsh, White or Leonard in twenty-round bouts. As for Johnston, he's a free lance, also, so scramble for a championship bout is getting and is ready to meet any of the big fellows.

World's Greatest Baseball Player tells how

NUXATED IRON gave him new life

THIS GREAT GIANT OF STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE SAYS HE NOW PLAYS A BETTER GAME THAN WHEN HE WAS YOUNGER.

Physician explains why taking Nuxated Iron gave Ty Cobb such tremendous strength and vitality after he was so weakened and all "rundown"—says it will often increase the strength and power of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in two weeks' time.

New York, N. Y.—When interviewed in his apartment at Bretton Hall, Ty Cobb said: "Hundreds of people write me to know how I train and what I do to keep up that force and vitality which enables me to play practically every day of the entire baseball season. They wonder why I can play a better game today than when I was younger. The secret is keeping up the supply of iron in my blood — exactly what anyone else can do if they will.

"At the beginning of the present season I was nervous and run down from a bad attack of tonsilitis, but soon the papers began to state 'Ty Cobb has come back.' He is hitting up the old stride.' The secret was iron — Nuxated Iron filled me with renewed life.

"Now they say I'm worth $10,000 a year to any baseball team, yet without plenty of iron in my blood I wouldn't be worth five cents. Nuxated Iron supplies that vital element strength and vim that make men of mark and women of power." Continuing, Dr. Bauer said: "Mr. Cobb's case is but one of hundreds which I could cite from my own personal experience, which proves conclusively the astonishing power of Nuxated Iron to restore strength and vitality, even in most complicated chronic conditions.

Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 25 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact, a young man he really was, notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 39 he was in bad health, at 46 he was careworn and nearly all in. Now at 55 a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength builders, but you must take iron in a form that can be easily assimilated, and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless.

Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and how to maintain it. Time was when I used this secret myself, but now I have gone to inferior, impure substitutes for nuxated iron, because I could buy them for a few cents less per pound. Now I am using nuxated iron myself and prescribing it in my practice, and I am free to say that I have never used any remedy that has given me such splendid results as this great iron tonic. Within two weeks' time it will increase the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in many instances. Then again, for pale, sickly women and nervous, run-down conditions, I have never seen its equal. There are hundreds of nerve medicines and nauseous concoctions and fake simple nuxated iron that I am convinced that thousands of persons might be saved who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, influenza, liver and kidney troubles, and other real and true cause which started their ailment was nothing more nor less than weakness, run-down condition, brought on by lack of enough iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you and does you little or no good. You don't get the strength out of it and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking, just like a plant trying to grow in soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test. See how long you can work or how far you can walk briskly. Then take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while doubts their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this form of iron is not dangerous nor does it injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach, as some of the old forms of iron are liable to do, but on the contrary, it is a most effective remedy for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer, in forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous people within ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

I am astonished at the tremendous strength and endurance which I so quickly obtained from taking Nuxated Iron—I feel younger and stronger today than ever before in my life, and the proof is shown by the fact that I play a better game than when I was younger.

DUNDEE HURRIES TO WIN

Scotch-Wop Strikes Tartar in Ever Hammer and Lucky to Gain Verdict in Kansas City Ring.

Kansas City, Sept. 12—After fifteen rounds of fast fighting, Johnny Dundee of New York was awarded the decision over Ever Hammer of Chicago before a big crowd in Convention hall.

Dundee had the better of five rounds, Hammer won three and the balance were even. The decision was a popular one in the main, although the gallerytes thought Hammer was entitled to a draw. Dundee weighed 132 pounds and Hammer 134.

This was the very best battle held here since the fifteen-round game opened, and it was a fine ending to an unbalanced card. In the semi-windup Andre Anderson of Chicago and Jack Hempel of California fought five rounds, after which Hempel quit. He was badly outclassed.

Dundee's skill was of little value to him in his battle, as he was forced to stand toe-to-toe with Hammer andswing. The Chicago boy kept on top of his opponent every minute of the battle, and in eight of the fifteen rounds was decidedly the aggressor.

In the first five rounds Hammer had a lead because of his fast in-fighting, but the next five gave Dundee the edge. Johnny danced away from the rough Swede and piled up points.

The last five rounds were a repetition of the first five, jammed full of action.

HARTE AND CANER TO PLAY FOR HARVARD

Philadelphia, Sept. 12—Richard Harte, Jr., and Calkett Caner are Harvard's entrants in the annual intercollegiate tennis tournament which starts today on the Merion Cricket Club courts. Princeton will depend on Leonard Heekman, who was runner-up to R. Norris Williams, 2d, last year. Yale will be represented by Jerry Webber, and Pennsylvania by Kenneth Kennedy and E. H. Edwards.

NEW YORK BILL TONIGHT

New York, Sept. 12—A bout between Harry Pierce and Willie Beecher will be the sterling attraction at the opening of the Broadway Sporting Club tonight. There will also be a ten-rounder between "Chick" Simler and Paul Edwards. Willie Jackson will box Alfie Nack, the examateur champion, at the Hunts Point Sporting Club, in the Bronx, tonight.

Probable Lineup Harvard Backs in Colby Game

More than likely here is how Field Coach Leo H. Leary will line up his backfield at the start of Harvard's opening game with Colby, September 23.

Quarterback—Robinson.
Halfbacks—"Rufe" Bond and Horween.
Fullback—Plower.

HARVARD FOOTBALL

Are the fat boys coming into fashion again in football? The presence of "Curley" Spears at Dartmouth and Babe White of Syracuse last year may lead to the question of whether the roly polys were ever really on the shelf. Now Yale has its "Cupid" Black and they are grooming along a mighty promising prospect at Harvard in "Kewpie" Clark. Clark is being boomed on Soldiers Field to make a name for himself this Fall. Clark admits he is "pleasingly plump" at 211 pounds.

At Weatherhead, who has taken up his duties as coach at Bowdoin, does not favor numbering football players. It will be interesting to note whether he will win the Maine college over to his way of thinking.

Cline On with Donahue

Hartley to Box Coogan

By RINGSIDE.

Two twelve-round encounters, with all four combatants being imported to Boston for the big show, will feature tonight's Armory A. A. boxing bill at the Arena. The arrangements, given as tryout by Miah Murray, Aleck MacLean, Dan Lane & Co. a week ago, proved eminently successful, both as regards business and action, so will be continued indefinitely, save on such evenings our boxing sulons are able to sign a sure-enough, hope-to-die stylish pair for the windup event.

Harry Donahue of Pekin, Ill., a lightweight of very fair renown, and "Irish Patsy" Cline of New York, a former National champion among the amateurs, a youth who was a riot when boxing in Boston for medals, not the filthy lucre, form the most fashionable pair which will be trotted forth.

Mel Coogan of Brooklyn, who recently bested "Billy" Myers of the luckless Joe McCarthy stable, and "Sailor" Smiley, in local rings, hooked up with Pete Hartley of New York, one of Lee P. Flynn's champions, in the other big melee.

While the show does not bristle with class, so far as outward signs go, it may just as not as not prove a riot and give the Triple-S. members one of their banner revels of the Summer season. Likewise may the show disappoint. It's one that not a whole lot can be intelligently written about.

PAIRS ARE WELL MATCHED.

Suffice it to say the management is confident the rival pairs are well matched; all four boys own considerable reputations, and the chances are there will be plenty of action.

Cline is one of New York's present ring sensations. All Summer long he has been operating on an average of twice a week, and his reverses have been few and far between. He was a fast, clever glovesman, and the owner of a hefty punch with it when operating with the amounts.

Donahue is supposed to be the sturdier scrapper of the two. He has met a lot of stars of the lightweight class and was never beaten very far. Still the chances are the talent will install Cline the betting choice.

Likewise will the wise-cracking brigade probably play Hartley to beat Coogan. Still it looks as if the betting on both bouts will be close, even money which generally means tight scrapping.

While Hartley is being billed these days as hailing from New York he's really a New Haven boy. Prominent among his work in New England rings was a fifteen-round draw with Joe Azevedo at New Bedford and a nine-round kayo triumph over Larry Burns at Lawrence. Labor Day Hartley also bested Larry Hansen of Brooklyn at the James Grille Baths palace.

MURPHY ON WITH OWEN.

There will be the usual two six-rounders. Teddy Murphy is to have it out with Pat Owens of Cambridge, while Johnny Boyle of Lowell will mix with "Battling" O'Neill of Lynn. Owens, a recent graduate of the amateurs, has been going at a rattling speedy clip of late months. He leaves up as a good prospect. Hence it will be interesting to see exactly how he fares with Murphy, an experienced, tricky little individual.

The big show is carded to get under way at 8 p. m.

M. CROSS DEFEATS HIRST.

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 12—Marty Cross of New York overcame Jim Hirst's defence and gained a decisive victory over the Philadelphian in their ten-round bout here.

LAST NIGHT IN THE RING.

Kansas City, Mo., Sept. 12—"Battling" Reddy, the New York lightweight, knocked out Johnny Leopold in the fifth round at the Central A. C.

Pittsfield, Sept. 12—"Irish Patsy" Cline of New York outpointed Fighting Bob of Allentown Pa., by a wide margin in ten rounds at the Twentieth Century A. C.

Gloucester, Sept. 12—Joe White of South Boston and Carl Herr of Washington went six fast rounds to a draw at the Lenox A. C. Pat Owens of Cambridge was in six rounds over Jack Hassett of Boston.

New York, Sept. 12—K. O. Eggers had the better of Terry Martin in their ten-round bout at the Vanderbilt A. C. Eggers scored two knockdowns.

All the Stars in the "Revenge" Race

A race that should prove every bit as exciting as the world's cycling derby will be staged at the Revere cycle track tomorrow night, when the game field that competed in the championship will clash in the "revenge" race over a 100 kilometre (62½ miles) course.

Victor Linart, the newly crowned king of motor-pacedom, Vincent Madonna, George Wiley, Clarence Eastman and Leon Didier will comprise the field.

While Linart's title is not at stake, no champion wants to get whipped in his first start after a champion, and naturally the Belgian can be depended upon to put forth his best efforts.

Linart knows full well that each and every one of his four opponents is out to challenge his every move, but is confident that he can outlast them, as he did in the big race.

The returning of the derby at regular season prices, or half championship rates, has made a decided hit with cycling fandom, and from every side indications point to another great outpouring at tomorrow night's contest.

One point Butler wishes to bring out is that the "revenge" race will start promptly at 8 o'clock. The amateur and professional races will follow.

Napoleon Direct Lands Big Race at Syracuse

Syracuse, N. H., Sept. 12—In the free-for-all pace on the opening day's program of the Grand Circuit at the New York State Fair Grounds Napoleon Direct, driven by "Pop" Geers, won almost as he pleased, going over in straight heats. Dictator made a procession of the Kentucky $5,000 stake for 2:11 pacers, winning with ridiculous ease.

Brepia won the 2:18 trot in straight heats. Onora Axworthy had things all her own way in the 2:14 trot.

The Messing Springs sweepstakes for three-year-old trotters attracted a field of ten starters. Harry Devereux, piloting Jack Mooney, won the first heat, but Bonnie Bell, with Thomas Hinds up, took the next two easily.

COAST POLO TEAM WINS.

Hamilton, Sept. 12—The Coronado, Cal., polo team won the Myopia polo cup by defeating the Myopia second team in the final match, 14 goals to 5, today.

Harvard Squad at It

Casey Dons Spangles

Harvard's varsity football squad, with sixty-eight members enrolled, bids fair to touch the four-score mark before nightfall. Eighteen new dabblers in football stock reported to Captain Harrie Dadman on Soldiers Field yesterday afternoon and they were placed on an equal footing with their better-conditioned rivals when it came to having the daily tussle with the different contraptions, known to gridiron followers as "fundamental" practice.

Eddie Casey, who came to Harvard from Exeter last Fall with a sparkling reputation, but managed to generally keep out of the limelight as a freshman in football because of injured stomach muscles, is best known of the men reporting [illegible] candleld and Hamilton [illegible] like two very promising freshmen last year, but both of whom were put out for the season with broken legs in the Worcester Academy game, have signed up for more football and less infirmary. So many fights were the toll collected from the Worcester youths last October the crimson freshman management made wisely did not schedule the academy boys again this Fall.

Walter Wheeler, tackle on the 1914 team also started work yesterday. Frank Irons six months' service during his ambulance around Verdun has prepared Wheeler for almost anything modern football can offer.

The other new players with the squad are Chalfed Ward, Cliff Richmond, the trio collected from the [illegible] Exeter; Bobby French, Ken Culbert, Rhett Ellison, Frank Weld, George White, Vernon Hall, Bill Hassler, Harrison Meaker and Richmond.

"Why," he was asked, "are you champion? Are you the best man in your class?"

"No," he replied. (Remember, kind readers, that this is a fable).

But knocks the fight game out.

THIS is the story Madge Minturn told:

"Well, Miss Fairfax, I guess it's an old enough story—one you have heard a good many times before. I was sixteen when I came to work in his father's office. I was lonesome and I wanted friends and happiness and a good time like other girls.

"For two years I just worked and ate and slept and got up and dressed and went through the same old rounds again. Then Ralph came home from college and down to the office, and I met him . . . and he said he loved me—and that's all there I am. I was just lonesome. I couldn't stand it.

"I wanted to believe him when he said he loved me and was going to marry me; I wanted to believe him—and so I did. I couldn't stand the loneliness any more. But God knows it was better than this."

"Poor little lonely girl," said I.

"That's about the biggest tragedy in all our congested, cruel city life—and nobody seems able to help it."

A Little Comfort

"Why, you sound sorry for me—not as if you thought I was bad or you wanted to draw your skirts away—just sorry," said Madge Minturn, wonderingly.

"I am sorry," said I. "Sorrier than I can tell you, Madge. Society is to blame—but society isn't going to pay, I am afraid."

"No—I am. But somehow, Miss Fairfax, I feel as if I'd found a friend and as if I wasn't a bit afraid of paying any more, only baby mustn't have to pay for me. You'll help me, won't you? My boy must have a name. I'll stay buried in this lonely little corner of the world forever, never risk o see Ralph again or be happy or anything. I don't care how lonely I am—I only want a name for my baby."

The girl fell to sobbing wildly and then and there I vowed that she should have her heart's desire—a name for her baby, or Beatrice Fairfax would forever call herself a failure.

"Well, I suppose you want to know just how it was." Madge recovered herself and went on with her story quietly and dispassionately, with only an occasional sob to punctuate it.

"Ralph brought me down here—after baby came, and got Mrs. Woods to take care of me. She's a good-hearted sort. I think she's fond of baby and me. I have not seen Ralph from the time I brought me here, six months ago. I haven't even spoken to him until this morning. He wrote once in a while and I had money and good care—but that wasn't what I wanted.

"Then this morning I got desperate. I telephoned down to the office and asked for Ralph. I told him I didn't want to hold him. I just wanted a name for the baby. It only he'd marry me he could divorce me right afterward and accuse me of anything he liked. I'd stand anything if I could only get a name for baby. It ought to be Ralph Conley, Jr. It's just baby now.

Beatrice Makes a Promise

"Ralph sounded nervous and worried, but he said he'd do the right thing. I could just feel his father in back of him. I always thought he would have married me as soon as he knew he ought to—except that his father was so ambitious for him. He's young, and he couldn't get along without his father yet—and I guess he was afraid to try. That's all."

"No, it isn't quite all, Madge. You have a friend now—a friend who is outside your trouble, looking at it squarely and honestly, instead of inside of it, just feeling it and going around in a hopeless, unreasoning circle of suffering. I am going to help you—do you believe that?"

"Yes, I do believe it. May I show you a picture of baby? He's such a darling when his eyes are open—they're so blue, like Ralph's. He was asleep when you saw him."

"I want you to give me a picture of the baby, Madge—that will be my greatest ally in helping you."

And when I left a moment later the girl who escorted me to the door was no longer sullen and bitter, but back of all her sobbing she bore an air of hopeful strength.

My country John, dozing over the reins, roused himself as we came out to the dusty roadway.

Madge Minturn tells Beatrice Fairfax how Ralph Conley provided for her.

As I clambered into my ramshackle equipage I got a queer glimpse of a tattordemalion human. A man emerged from the woods which flanked Madge's little cottage and peered toward the house, with a certain sinister air.

I decided that he was the most evil-looking tramp I had ever seen—furtive and yet shrewd of eye, loose lipped and yet strong of jaw. He suggested slimy unpleasantness to me. For a second I was tempted to go back and tell Madge—but I decided that I could best serve her by hurrying to the city and tending to her real need instead of rousing her to fearful consciousness of a passing tramp.

Women are nervous enough in all conscience, and no lover of her fellow-women feels justified in bothering them with any added nervous fears. I decided that I had no right to share my glimpse of this evil scarecrow with Madge, and so I hurried ahead to perform the mission which might mean everything in the world to her. If I could enlist the sympathies of Margaret Payne I would be doing far more for Madge Minturn than merely with my own interest.

And so I passed the evil-looking man by and gave him no further thought. On moments such as these life inetelf often depends. For Madge Minturn there was more than life in the balance—the horrible looking creature I dismissed so lightly was to play a grave part in her affairs.

Jimmie on the Scene

My loose-hung vehicle rattled down the country road. I bounced about uncomfortably on the back seat. All around were dark woods. There was loneliness everywhere, but it was the endurable loneliness of nature rather than the ostracism of loneliness one feels in a city where companionship surges all about and leaves one marooned.

Just before we reached the station the other ramshackle, "one-hoss-shay" passed us. One passenger was bouncing around with the same ill-at-easeness I was forced to betray. I glimpsed a good looking, well-groomed young fellow who suggested some of the same furtive weakness I had seen on the face of the tramp.

I told myself I didn't like the natives of Blue Cove—nor yet its visitors—but a moment later I passed the visitor I did like. It was Jimmie.

Mr. Barton was riding a ramshackle bicycle which seemed to belong to exactly the same vintage from which came the city's carriages.

"All aboard the wreck!" cried Jimmie, hailing me with joy as he pedaled his miserable two-wheeled monstrosity up the hill.

"You're much more friendly than the other city chap I just passed," said I. "He pulled his hat over his eyes and didn't give a fellow-traveler any 'hail and farewell!'"

Jimmie laughed. "No, I guess not—'scuse me hauow" he probably surmised that you had just come from visiting the lady toward whom he is now bound . . . You see, the gentleman you just met happens to be Ralph Conley."

Their Married Life

Copyright, 1916, International News Service.

Everything had gone as Miranda had planned. Ned Burns, much to his surprise and delight, had been invited to the house party. Helen, with no more objections, had accompanied Warren on Saturday afternoon in the machine.

"What changed your mind about going?" Warren had asked once curiously.

"Your thinking I was jealous," Helen responded laughingly. "That was too absurd to let pass."

"More likely you thought I would go without you," Warren returned, angry at receiving no more definite answer, and Helen had not responded.

Helen had departed early Saturday morning for an afternoon dress. She had been dressed at breakfast, and Warren had viewed her in surprise.

"I am going out with you," she offered in explanation.

"That's something new, isn't it?" Yes, dear, but I shall need a dress of some kind for the afternoon."

"Another dress?" Warren asked querulously.

A HOME GREETING.

"Another?" Helen said calmly. "Why, I haven't had a thing this Summer. So I decided that if you really wanted me to accept this invitation I ought to be as well dressed as the rest of the women. I have saved enough by staying in town this Summer to have a few things, I should think."

They arrived at Babbie's in the cool of the afternoon, and a gay crowd was gathered on the porch. Tom and Babbie rushed out to meet them, and Helen followed Babbie upstairs.

"Tom and I were so glad, dear, to be able to ask Mr. Burns," Babbie explained. "And he was so delighted he accepted immediately. We ought to have just a splendid time. I'm just crazy about the crowd. Don't you like Lola Wilcox? She is so refreshing."

Helen avoided replying by suddenly exclaiming over something else, and then she followed Babbie downstairs and met everyone. Lola Wilcox had not arrived and neither had Ned. Helen was vaguely troubled. When she and Frances had planned the occasion they had not thought of accounting for Warren's surprise at Ned's arrival. That would give Babbie ground for suspicion, a thing that Helen wished to avoid.

Babbie rose to greet him and Warren stared a moment. Helen's heart ached cold, but Warren shook hands and said conventionally:

"How are you, Burns?" Nothing at all about "how did you happen to be here?" or anything of the kind.

Just as Frances said, when Ned returned he walked over to Helen's chair and stood there. Helen's cheeks were burning and she had never looked so attractive. She wore her white broadcloth dress that she had bought earlier in the season, and she talked animatedly with Ned, who responded gallantly, surprised, but glad, to get Helen's undivided attention.

At 5 o'clock, just as Babbie had summoned the tea wagon out, Lola Wilcox arrived. She was driving a little racer and she looked distractingly pretty. All the men thought so from the glances accorded her. She wore a white serge coat suit covered by a long cerise coat.

"How do you like my car?" Miss Wilcox called out. "It was loaned to me for the occasion. Isn't it a beauty? Hello, Babbie, I'll pay my respects to you and Tom and then I'm ready to give a trial demonstration. Who wants to come?"

Helen resented the little thrill of fear that swept over her, and she was smilingly cordial with the others.

SECRET OUT

"All right," called Miss Wilcox. "I'm ready now. No, Dan, you can't go; you wouldn't take me to the theatre Tuesday night," as Darrin, who called gayly, "How about you? Come on. I'll wager that I can make your own car look sick. Besides, I've owed you a ride since the night of the accident."

Warren got up, flushed at the girl's obvious choice of him, and a moment later she had pressed the self starter and was off.

Ned, with a laugh, settled down in the chair Warren had vacated, and the rest of the party drank tea and laughed and talked gayly.

Good Housekeeping Recipes

Good food properly cooked goes far toward insuring health and long years. As much depends on the cooking, however, as on the food itself. The following recipes have been tested and approved by Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, and are republished here by special arrangement with that publication, the Nation's Greatest Home Magazine.

All measurements are level, standard half-pint measuring cups, tablespoons and teaspoons being used. Sixteen level tablespoonfuls equal a half-pint. Quantities are sufficient for six people unless otherwise stated. Flour is sifted once before measuring.

FOR THE FIRELESS COOKER.

Chicken Hungarian.

One three- or four-pound roasting chicken, one large onion, quarter cupful butter, one-half teaspoonful paprika, one and one-half teaspoonfuls salt, one can tomatoes, three-quarters cupful thick sour cream, one-quarter cupful drippings or other fat.

Melt the fat and butter and brown the onion in it. Remove the onion. Disjoint the chicken as for fricasee and brown in the fat, then add the paprika and salt. Transfer to fireless cooker utensil; add tomatoes and let boil for ten minutes before putting in the cooker. Use one radiator; cook from four to five hours for a fowl, two hours for a chicken. Stir in the cream just before serving. If desired the gravy may be thickened.

Baked Sliced Ham.

One slice fat ham. Two tablespoonfuls sugar.

Trim off the wide rim of fat on the ham, chop it fine, and mix thoroughly with the sugar. Place the ham in a skillet, dripping pan or fireless cooker pan, and spread the chopped mixture over it. Bake for twenty-five minutes in a hot oven or allow forty-five minutes with a radiator at 400 degrees Fahrenheit in a fireless cooker. It is not necessary to freshen the ham.

Whole-Wheat Wih Apples.

One cupful whole-wheat flour (ground coarse) or whole grain; one-half cupful cracked wheat; six apples, quartered; one-half cupful sugar; one teaspoonful salt; two cupfuls water; one teaspoonful soda.

Mix the flour or whole-wheat grain with a little water, and add the soda. Bring to boiling point, pour off the water, then add water again to cover, bring to boiling point again and drain, but do not add any more soda. This should be done still a third time in order to take away any disagreeable strong flavor. Mix the scalded meal with the cracked wheat, add the salt and boiling water. Cook slowly overnight in the fireless cooker. In the morning add the apples and sugar. Transfer to an earthen dish or leave in the fireless cooker utensil. Cover and cook again in a fireless cooker for two hours, using one radiator. Large quantities can be made at a time and sealed for future use.

Measured Pound Cake.

Five cupfuls sifted pastry-flour, three cupfuls sugar; two cupfuls butter; one and one-half cupfuls milk; nine eggs; two teaspoonfuls baking powder; one teaspoonful almond extract.

Work butter and sugar together till creamy; then add the extract and egg-yolks well beaten. Sift together the flour and baking powder, and add alternately with milk; then stir in the egg-whites, beaten very stiff. Bake in two brick-shaped tins for an hour with two radiators at 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

Uncooked Tomato Relish.

One-half peck tomatoes, one quart cider vinegar, six green peppers, four medium sized onions, one-half cupful chopped cabbage, one cupful sugar, one cupful salt, two teaspoonfuls celery salt, two teaspoonfuls red pepper, one teaspoonful ground cloves, one teaspoonful yellow mustard seed, one teaspoonful black mustard seed.

Scald and peel tomatoes, chop all ingredients fine, add seasonings and mix well; add the vinegar and enough extra to cover if necessary. This will keep indefinitely.

No Justice

"One of my daughters has tonsilitis," exclaimed Mr. Growler, "and the other has sprained her wrist."

"That's hard luck."

"Yes; nothing seems to work out in the way it ought to. The one who sprained her wrist sings, and the one with a sore throat plays the piano."

Dreams That Do Not Come True

The Childless Woman and the Mother with a Large Family Speak

By DOROTHY DIX

As It Seems to Be

THE CHILDLESS WOMAN SPEAKS:

"I have no children and my life is as empty as an unfilled vessel.

"I hate the orderly desolation of my house, with nothing ever awry in it. No mud is ever tracked on my rugs by little feet. No little finger prints mar my mahogany. There is no smudge from grubby little hands on my picture books. Everything is prim, precise, and soundless in my home.

"And it is so quiet. There is no gay childish laughter, no babbling little voices. No cries of excitement over the wonders of a world in which fresh discoveries are made every day. Everything is as still and solemn, and dull as in a church.

"My husband and I are very fond of each other, but we do not find much to talk about. Long ago we learned all of each other's opinions on every subject under the sun. We are middle-aged people, and fate has dealt all our cards, and they lay face up on the table, so we know about what we are to have.

"Our plans and ambitions have either failed, or materialized into success, so we no longer build air castles. Besides, when people reach our age they lose interest in themselves; their wants and desires narrow down to a very little.

"The middle-aged must take their pleasures, and their hopes, and their ambitions vicariously, and they are cheated of this unless they have children in whom they can live again. My husband and I would not gape in each other's faces if we had a beautiful young daughter whose future we were planning out, and a son in whose career we were absorbed.

"What plans we would be making then, what hopes would be gilding our days, what ambitions would be thrilling us. How young life would serge back through our sluggish veins in our children!

"I think the woman at whose knee little children have lisped their evening prayers has been close to God Himself. I think the woman who has watched the little child's mind unfold has been privileged to see miracles, and I know that the only woman who ever finds the fountain of eternal youth is the one who finds it in her children.

"No I do not envy the woman who has a string of matched pearls. I envy the woman who has clinging little arms around her neck. I do not envy the woman who has her box at the opera. I envy the woman who hears the music of the spheres when a little child calls her 'mother,' and when I come home at night I would rather stumble over a toy railway train on the floor than over bags of gold.

"It is only the women who have children who really live."

As It Really Is

THE MOTHER SPEAKS

"For goodness sake, can't you children keep quiet a single moment! You've almost made distracted! You Johnnie, quit making a noise like a steam engine! Tommie, if you beat that drum another time I'll box your ears.

"No, Janie, you can't wear your white dress this afternoon. You've got to save that for Sunday. Now hush that. I won't have you screaming over a little thing like that. Johnnie, quit pulling Lucy's hair. You shouldn't treat your little sister that way, and if you don't stop being so bad I'll tell your father when he comes home on you.

"S-s-sh-sh, how you've waked the baby, and you know he's fretful because he's teething, and with this heat, and I've just spent an hour in getting him to sleep.

"No, Johnnie, you can't use the table cover to make an Indian tent, and I won't have the dining room chairs used for a submarine. The next time you do it, you tote a load in the leather cushions playing a mine had struck it.

"Oh, dear, I'm just wild with all this confusion and noise, and I feel as if I'd give ten years of my life if I could just go off to some place for a single day alone, where I wouldn't hear a sound, nor do anything but rest, and there wouldn't be somebody calling me every single minute—'Mo-o-other, may I have a cooky,' 'Mo-o-ther, gimme a dime to go to the movies,' 'Mo-o-ther, make Tommie behave,' 'Mo-o-ther, may I do this' and may I do that.

"And cleaning! This house looks like a pig sty, and yet I've straightened it up fifty times today. I do nothing but pick up blocks, and toys, and dolls and things, and put them away, and tidy up caps and aprons and dresses, and sweep up crumbs, and wash dirty little faces from morning until night, and then I'm through and there's nothing to show for what I've done, because it has all to be done over again.

"As for pleasure, I've forgotten there is any such thing as a dance or a theatre. How can I go with a houseful of children that I have to

An Unfailing Way To Banish Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.—Advertisement.

watch every instant for fear they'll get the croup, or set themselves afire, or help themselves from the medicine chest? Why, I can't trust them out of my sight for a second without their getting into trouble, and doing something they shouldn't do. And that no human imagination could have foretold they were likely to do.

"And I'm shabby. We've a decent income, but all goes for the millions of things the children have to have and there's no money left for anything but the bare necessities for the present moment. I'm ashamed of myself when I saw how dowdy I looked when I met Mary Jones, who has no children and who dresses like a fashion plate.

"And, dear, when they raise statues to the martyrs, I don't know why they don't use a mother for the model."

Good Health Makes a Happy Home

Good health makes housework easy. Bad health takes all happiness out of it.

Hosts of good women and good mothers drag along in daily misery, back aching, worried, "blue," tired and worn, because they don't know what ails them or what to do for it.

These same troubles come with weak kidneys, and, if the kidney action is distressingly disordered, there should be no doubt that the kidneys need help.

Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. They are safe and reliable. They have helped thousands of discouraged women.

A Boston Case:

Mrs. A. J. Falt, 528 E. Sixth St., says: "If I did a heavy day's work, I suffered from a dull ache through my back. I was nervous and restless at night and could not sleep well. During the day I felt tired and languid and had no energy to go about my housework. Two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills cured me of the backache and I have had no return of the trouble for the past year or more."

FIRE ON OUTPOST OF NINTH AT EL PASO

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 12.—An outpost of H Company of the Ninth Regiment was fired upon Monday at the Cameron stockyards. Three shots were fired at support No. 1, commanded by Sergeant C. W. Clark. None took effect. Captain Dunn happened to be touring his outposts at the time, and in his report to brigade headquarters stated that two Mexicans were seen. The guard did not return the fire.

Cupid invaded the camp of the Second Massachusetts Brigade, and as a result announcement is made today of the engagement of Major Irving T. Cutter of Winchester, attached to the medical corps of the Eighth Regiment, to Miss Zula Robinson, one of the most popular and talented young women in the upper set of El Paso.

They were introduced a month ago and Major Cutter proposed in twenty days. Miss Robinson was soloist at the dedication of the Y. M. C. A. recreation pavilion stationed at Camp Cotton. This pavilion, patronized by the Bay State infantrymen, is in the centre of the Eighth Regiment camp site.

Major Cutter, always known as a "confirmed bachelor," attended the dedication exercises. He sought an introduction to the soprano soloist.

Miss Robinson's next appearance was at a concert given by the Eighth. Then she played the heroine in "Held by the Enemy" and the leading part in "The Time, the Place and the Girl." During the rehearsals and the dancing that followed the shows Major Cutter pressed his suit.

His brother officers noticed his interest but were surprised and pleased to learn of his intended marriage. He and Miss Robinson were showered with congratulations.

Major Cutter has been in the militia sixteen years. He lives at No. 319 Main street, Winchester, and practices in that town. He was graduated from Harvard in 1903 and from Harvard Medical School.

Funston Ready to Inspect State Troops.

By BERT FORD.

El Paso, Texas, Sept. 12.—General Frederick Funston, commanding the Southern Division, will inspect Massachusetts troops at Camps Cotton and Pershing next week, this announcement today, in the opinion of Bay State commanders, as new strength to reports that the 7,500 Massachusetts troops will be sent home on or about October 1. Although no official date has been given, it is felt General Funston's inspection presages an early movement of the Massachusetts units.

General E. Leroy Pearson's forces have been so highly thought of by the army that they have been given the most important points to guard in the El Paso district. The Bay State soldiers are now guarding every vital point but the international bridge. Despite the presence here of the National Guard of so many States, many of the places guarded by our men have been hitherto guarded by regulars.

Close upon the heels of the report that the Bay State troops will start for home on or about October 1 came the announcement that the three militia officers sent to El Paso by Adjutant-General Pearson to obtain a complete muster record of the 7,500 Massachusetts men on the border, sought the information for a voting list as well as for State records should a law be passed to help the dependents of enlisted men.

The prevailing sentiment among the Massachusetts forces is that outside interference is dangerous. It is argued that so long as the National Guard is in the Federal service the War Department should be the only judge as to when the State forces should be sent home. It is felt that political or emotional requests to send the troops home might establish a dangerous precedent and reflect on the Commonwealth should some grave situation arise after the Massachusetts units had left the border.

BAY STATE MEN TO WINTER ON BORDER

The Massachusetts troops are booked to stay at the border for several months longer, in the opinion of Sumner S. Gordon, a private in the Medical Department of Troop B of the Massachusetts Cavalry, who returns to El Paso tonight after a fleeting trip to Boston.

"It looks as if the boys would be there all Winter," said Gordon. "Heavy uniforms, sweaters and blankets are being assigned in preparation for the cooler weather which is due soon.

"The tents are being equipped with flooring and everything is being made snug in preparation for Winter. Relatives of the soldiers who were looking forward to their home-coming are going to be disappointed.

"The members of the Massachusetts troops are in good condition, and are so thoroughly hardened that they perform their duties in easy fashion. They've become acclimated, too, which helps a lot. On the whole, they seem thoroughly well satisfied, and while they realize they are probably due for a long stay, there's no kick coming."

Over half a million shares were traded today in the first hour of the New York Stock Exchange. Greatest activity was in steel industrials. After opening strong, with several issues touching new high records, the market developed irregularly toward noon under profit-taking sales.

United States Steel was again the feature. It opened with the sale of 7,800 shares at 138¼, smashing yesterday's high record of 140¼, then advanced to 140⅝, a gain of 1¾ points. By noon it had forfeited some of this gain.

Other high records were attained by Republic Iron & Steel at 87, Atlantic Gulf & West Indies common at 43⅝, Utah Copper at 85, Central Leather at 63⅝ and General Motors at 595⅝. The latter was within ¾ point of Bethlehem Steel's high record.

Bethlehem Steel had advanced 20 points to 520 at noon. Other gains by steel issues were Lackawanna Steel, Colorado Fuel 8, 5A Crucible 5.

Aside from steels, American Smelting attracted attention by its strength and actively. Coppers and rails were also in good demand.

Extensive purchasing of coppers was found in the report that the allies were again in the market for 100,000 pounds of the red metal. Republic Iron & Steel issues were the most active rails.

Among large sales at noon were New York Air Brake 1⅞, American Woolen common 6½, Baltimore and Ohio 4, Chesapeake & Ohio 2½, Erie common 2¾, Reading 2½ and Texas Company 2¾.

The Boston market was generally strong, with mining coppers were irregular. Four stocks had achieved new high records for the year. Boston Commercial 12, Swift & Company 112½, Atlantic Gulf common 85⅝ and preferred 120.

United States Smelting was active and strong, advancing a point. Other changes were in the fractions.

INDELICATE
Scenes or suggestions have no place in "CIVILIZATION." It is not a Vice Picture. Nor is there need of forced agitation. A drama essenced with sterling vitality, intense individualism, and mighty in its largeness, it needs no false heralding to secure attentive action. It is for all people of all ages without age limit. Parents, keep your children. The good of the drama is vital for the future generation. It was especially for them Thomas Ince spent $1,000,000 to produce it.

Girls Writing Letters to Unknown Soldiers

An Extremely Foolish and Unnecessary Practice.

Copyright, 1916, Star Company

THE teachers of one very well-known school and a good many other sentimentalists have been advising young girls to write letters to soldiers in the trenches—especially to French soldiers, as the sympathies of those sentimentalists happen to be with the French.

The girls are told to write to some man whose name is given to them "nice, friendly, girlish letters, showing an interest to cheer the soldier up."

Possibly, now that we have soldiers of our own down on the border, similar letters will be sent on the advice of older and foolish people to those American soldiers by the young girls.

This is an unnecessary and in some cases harmful piece of nonsense that has grown out of the war and the sympathies aroused by it.

There is enough nonsense in the world without advising young girls to write to soldiers in the trenches.

The foolish idea is that the poor soldier boy will be very much encouraged if he gets a nice letter from an American girl whom he never saw.

Girls are quite foolish enough without being encouraged to write to men.

Mothers of the girls ought to know that the men will misunderstand the letters, and that they are extremely apt to write replies that girls should not receive.

Don't imagine that there is any relief in a foolishly written letter, written by a foolish girl, urged by a foolish teacher, to a soldier, especially a French soldier, who has been brought up with strict ideas as to what constitutes modesty in a young girl and to think little of one that would write to a strange man.

Carranza's Envoys Contradict Own Story

MR. CARRANZA'S commissioners put a hard strain upon credulity. They affirm that Carranza is in complete control of Mexico and that his forces have put an end to brigandage and outlaw bands. The American troops must be immediately withdrawn because there is no disorder to warrant their presence in Mexico. But—

The American troops must remain on the border to guard the United States from invasion by outlaw bands or Mr. Carranza will not be responsible for what may happen.

Now, we submit that a Government which cannot prevent the invasion of a neighboring country by armed bands of its own people is a joke when it affirms it has perfect control of its own people.

If Mr. Carranza is in control of Mexico, if his forces are able to take care of Villa and other bandits, then why are we called upon to maintain an army on the border to keep our territory from being invaded?

We learn that the American commissioners are so much in agreement with Mr. Carranza's commissioners that they are discussing the best way to guard our frontier. It seems to be their opinion that our Government should build a string of blockhouses a thousand miles long and equip these with telephone connection and garrison them with American soldiers who could be rapidly assembled to meet invasion at any point.

That is to say, American taxpayers, who are already out $120,000,000 for this disgraceful fiasco in Mexico, must be steadily taxed to maintain a standing army on the border to keep the Mexican bandits, whom Carranza says he controls, from coming across to burn and kill.

Now, then, either Carranza is or is not in control of Mexico and Mexicans.

If he is in control, then he should be told, exactly as any other Government would be told, that it is HIS BUSINESS to keep Mexicans from coming over our border to kill our people.

And if he is not in control, then it is OUR BUSINESS to take control of Mexico, whether Mr. Carranza objects or not, and put an end to all this anarchy and to their invasions of our territory and their murder of our people.

That is the plain common sense of the situation.

We think you will agree that the proposal that we shall withdraw Pershing's force because the Carranza forces are able to keep the peace in Chihuahua unaided, coupled with the demand that we maintain an army on the border because the Carranza forces are NOT able to guarantee us against invasion from Chihuahua, is about the checkiest piece of impertinence ever addressed to a great and powerful nation.

The fact is that this pow-wow is a farce and a national disgrace.

It is a safe guess that right in the midst of this farce we shall see a bloody demonstration somewhere on the border of the futility and falsehood of Carranza's bombast and of the stern necessity of putting an end to the anarchy in Mexico which he has not ended and cannot end.

There is only one way in which peace and order can be restored in Mexico, and that is by the intervention of the American people.

There never will be an end of murder and robbery and wholesale brigandage until an AMERICAN army cleans up the whole brood of these so-called revolutionary chiefs and sets up a stable government under the protection and guidance of the United States.

The man who thinks that this inevitable intervention can be avoided by putting it off, by disregarding the slaughter of American citizens, by holding pow-wows with the representatives of a pet faction, or by any conciliations and submissions, has just exactly as much sense as the ostrich that rams its brainless head in the sand with the firm conviction that its enemy cannot see its bepluméd posterior.

Just exactly that much sense and not a bit more.

Cats Are Cruel Because They Lack Imagination, Says Garrett P. Serviss

Letter from a Reader Throws Light on the Cost of Their Board and Their Inability to Understand That They Are Torturing Their Victims—Why a Feline Never Dreams

By Garrett P. Serviss

HAVING recently expressed disapprobation of cats, I have received a temperate letter from a man who keeps two pet cats. He touches the subject on opposite sides—the economic and the philosophic.

People who can afford that amount of expenditure for such a purpose will be glad to learn that the two cats in question, which, it appears from his statement, seldom or never take rats or mice, cost their owner ten cents per day for food. This seems to be a moderate allowance where the animals are maintained as house pets.

One Worthy Lady Always Cut Up a Broiled Steak to Feed to Her Cats.

I know a lady who always has four or five cats about her house (burying them ceremoniously as fast as they die off, and remembering them with tears) who feeds them on broiled steak, carefully removing the gristle and bone, and cutting the meat into convenient mouthfuls so that the cats shall not have to make undue exertion in taking their meals.

Ten cents a day would probably not go very far toward covering this lady's bill of expenses for feline maintenance, since she also gives her cats plenty of fresh milk to drink. But, then, ten cents a day would also fall far short of paying many a man's expenses for cigars.

No doubt, too, cats can be kept, and well kept, on a daily expenditure amounting to a small fraction of ten cents, without requiring them ever to take a mouse. Besides, in the Summer time, birds will considerably reduce the expense, because the most aristocratic cat will take the commonest bird with gusto.

The philosophic part of the letter that I have referred to concerns the cruel disposition of the cat. It is true, says the writer, that cats love to torment and torture small animals, but, he argues, we ought to consider the nature of the feline brain. Cats are not remarkably intelligent animals, their brains are feeble, and they have no comprehension of what they are doing beyond the enjoyment of the fun. Any moving object interests and amuses them, but they have no idea of the suffering that their play inflicts.

The Unimaginative Cat Cannot Understand the Pain Her Victims Suffer.

This excuses the cat, but not the cat's owner. It likewise gives a glimpse at the origin of the sentiments of pity and sympathy which morally elevate the human animal above the other animals.

A little child is cruel in the same way, though, perhaps, not to the same degree as a cat. It does, without compunction, because without comprehension, whatever amuses it, having no regard to the suffering that it inflicts. When it twists the kitten's tail the yowl that follows simply increases the tormentor's enjoyment of the fun. But there comes a time when the child begins to understand the relation of cause and effect, and then its imagination is awakened.

At first, perhaps, it stops twisting the kitten's tail because the kitten strikes back and turns the fun into pain. But later, the principle of sympathy, a pure product of the imagination, comes into play, and then the child refrains from tormenting its pets because their cries remind it of its own sufferings.

The animal stories hardest to believe are those which are based on a supposed feeling of sympathy experienced by the animal that is the subject of the story. That a glimmering of such a sentiment may exist in some animals that have been accustomed to human companionship and training I would by no means deny, but it must be rare, and it offers in itself a proof of a certain amount of brain, or mind power, since sympathy implies imagination, or the ability to form a mental picture, and that, in turn, requires the existence of considerable complexity of organization in the brain.

A Dog Can Dream, but a Cat's Brain Is Too Poorly Organized for That.

It is significant that the animal to which sympathetic feeling is most frequently ascribed is the dog, and dogs are almost the only animals below man which are known to possess the power of dreaming. That dogs have vivid dreams is, I think, a fact beyond question. But a dream is a play of the imagination, and imagination is the product of, comparatively, a highly organized brain.

Cats are notorious sleepers, but I recall no recorded instance of a cat's dreaming. It might appear whimsical to assert that dogs are free from the cruel instincts of the cat, and amenable to sympathy, because they dream while cats do not, yet it is true that the power to sympathize and the power to dream are closely related in origin.

There is only one social quality which everybody seems to agree ascribing to the cat, and that is attachment to home, or more correctly, to place. The much higher quality of personal attachment the cat usually lacks. Of course, instances to the contrary can be cited, but they are relatively very rare, and the cat is never capable of the self-sacrificing devotion often shown by dogs.

Perhaps the cat's greatest value as a companion to man consists in the example of absolute tranquility, and easy freedom from all care, which it offers. A sleeping cat is a medicine to the perturbed human spirit. If the cat had more imagination it would be less cruel, but also less content.
